Walnut bowl saved from the burn pile!

This bowl came within seconds of being tossed into the burn pile. As I was getting close to the final shape, a segment flew out of one side leaving a large gap (ranging from 0" to  $\frac{1}{2}$ " wide and 2-1/2" long) and a small crack all the way across the bottom and up the opposite side. My first thought was to "toss it". After some additional consideration, I decided to attempt to salvage it. What did I have to lose except some time and some small amount of materials. The gain, on the other hand, would be the experience and education I would obtain (even if my attempt failed), and most of all, a walnut bowl. I first applied some thin CA glue over the crack on the inside and outside of the bowl. Next, I covered the gap on the outside of the bowl with Tyvek tape. I poured coffee grounds into the gap and then covered it with a thin layer of CA glue. This process was repeated until the gap was completely filled. My thinking was that the repair would look more natural if it mirrored the gap on the opposite side of the bowl, so I used a coping saw to cut out a gap to similar size and shape as the original gap. Using that same procedure, I repaired the new opening. Since the bowl shaping was almost complete, I knew that I was going to get a lot of vibration as I attempted to use a scraper to get to the final shape. I used my gloved hand to apply pressure on the opposite side of the bowl where pressure was also being applied with the scraper on the inside of the bowl. That process worked relatively well and I have used it several other times.

While I was pleased with the repair, the final finish left something to be desired. As it turns out, this may still be one of my favorite bowls, flaws and all.

President's Corner

Another GREAT meeting! It started with an excellent turnout for the wood raffle, followed by our business meeting which featured a fair number of Challenge items along with some nice Show and Tell turnings. But, the highlight was the Open Lathe Night demonstrations and hands-on trials for the brave! With 4 lathes in action and demonstrators moving between lathes, things got a little hectic and noisy. We may need to tweak the format for future open demos like this, but I'd like to see us do more of these with more members leading. As one of the demonstrators, I had a great time. I'm clearly no expert with a skew, but there is no better way to learn something than trying to show someone else how it's done! If you are already an expert – like the other demonstrators- that's great, but don't be afraid to put yourself out there. We'll be looking for volunteers for next time!

Thanks for listening. With the heat of the summer here, try to spend time out of the sun and at the lathe.

Steve

Please bring and wear your badge to the meeting!

If you want one, please contact Larry Yancey, lpyncay@gmail.com. The first one is free to members. There is a fee of $10.00 to replace a lost one

Virginia Woodturner's Symposium

On even numbered years, the woodturning clubs of Virginia collaborate to provide a woodturning symposium. It will be held in Fishersville, VA, on November 2 and 3 (Saturday and Sunday). There will be four 1 1/2 hour demos on Saturday and three on Sunday, for an advanced reservation fee of $85. Each day there will be a choice of 7 demos in each time frame. This is a real bargain.

A top notch selection of demonstrators has already been arranged on an interesting variety of topics. However, such an event requires participation by club members in addition to just attending. People are needed to assist with A/V, registration, assisting vendor and demo station setup on Friday, and a myriad of other details. Equipment needs to be picked up and transported both before and after the event.

The Richmond Woodturners has named two delegates to the Symposium Committee to work toward producing a successful event. They are Walt Bennett and Bob Silksen. Their role is to perform advance planning and communicate Symposium requirements to the club and its Board of Directors. Let them and any board member know of your interest in helping out.

The Virginia Symposium has a Facebook page, as well as a website. Either may be accessed for information about the Symposium.
