Finishing Part 2

Matt Baker: CA finish Is fast. 2 types of CA glue: thin and thick. Thin is good for stabilizing knots, porous wood, end grain hardener to lessen tear out and cracks. Thick is for bigger cracks. The accelerator will set up the CA glue even faster, but if too much is used it will crystallize. CA finish is shiny. Matt uses the numerous little baggies you get with pen kits to apply the glue. #400 grit between coats.

Andy Hammer: Durable Finishes The finish should do 2 things: enhance the appearance and provide protection. There are two types: drying oils (Tung oil, Linseed, Walnut) & evaporating solvents (Lacquer, shellac). Drying oils polymerize so solvents have no effect: a durable finish. In the other, the solvent is removed leaving behind what was dissolved in it. Both types, Andy applies and wipes off the excess.

Danny Luttrell: Beal Buffing System Be sure to sand through the grit series first. (#80 -600.). System is 3 wheels of cloth each loaded with a different buffing compound (Tripoli, white diamond, carnauba wax). These are spun at high speed to buff the finish of wooden objects. Open grain woods should not have the white diamond treatment (stays in the pores)
