Demo: Finishing Ideas I

Barbara Dill uses thin CA glue to coat the inside of her twisted goblets. She wants a good tough finish for foods like wine and OJ and to fill wood pores like red oak.

First, put a good squeeze of CA into the bottom of the goblet. Then with a balled-up wad of wax paper spread it out evenly. Don't forget the lip. Next soak up the remainder of the glue with a balled-up paper towel. A little #400 sandpaper to remove any dust and you're done. Barbara uses medium CA for the outside because it cures slower, and then finishes it off with Tung oil polymer wipe-on.

Brian Nobel-Marx has a thing about sanding. He goes through the grits on the lathe but stops it for the last sanding so he can go with the wood grain. If you can still see the scratches, go back one grit and do it again. If he is not staining, Brian might burnish the fibers with wood shaving. Oak & Ash – to #150. Cherry & Maple – to #180. Stain - #150. Natural finish – to #220. Brian uses #400 between the finish layers. Sand at a slow speed (200 to 300 rpm) to keep heat checks to a minimum and use reverse if you have it. Blow & tack off the piece before adding finish.

Jim Bumpas loves WaterLox because it holds up over time. It started out as a floor finish 100 years ago and will due everything a CA glue finish can. It is a penetrating Tung oil finish. He uses 3 coats with a "French polish" ball. WaterLox cures in one day. It does gel up over time so save the metal cap and use it. Jim said the finish moves with the wood so no cracking over time. There is some color in the finish so don't use it on holly.

www.WaterLox.com

Dick Hines loves his Watco finishes. They carry many different oil products. They don't cover up the grain, so the finished product still looks like wood. A little buffing and you're done. Watco does yellow so don't use on holly.

The finish container label should tell you if its safe for food after curing. Most finishes curing times are effected by temperature and humidity. Give it an other day for safety sake. The meeting ran over the time limit so Finishing Ideas II will be held during the February meeting. The egg demo will be moved to March.

Passing of the gavel to the new club president, Dick Hines.

Meeting Vibrations

Jim added a plug in to the club lathe for a lamp

Jerry Fisher & wife set up a monthly food list for the club members. 10 folks a month (listed by last name) will be responsible for the drinks, snacks & ice. Paper products will be provided by the club. 2 months at a time will be listed in the newsletter.

Farewell from the Past President

It is time to turn over the gavel to Dick Hines, who has been an outstanding member since 2002. Our club has experienced tremendous growth in the past few years, and I thank Ray Deyo for realizing that he would have to move WOODCRAFT to accommodate us! WOODCRAFT has been very kind to us in many ways and we are thankful. Personally, I would like to thank everyone in the club for their part in supporting the growth of our club during my two years as President. I trust that you will support Dick in leading our club to greater achievements. Respectfully, LEE SCARBROUGH
