Small Hole Hollowing with Dick Hines

1. With a spindle gouge, round up the blank & cut a tenon on each end (make the bottom one a little longer). Mark the center and round to rough shape.
2. Mount the top into a 4-jaw chuck. Finish rounding the top (next to the chuck). Sand.
3. Mark the plug (~1 inch). Part off the plug (tenon on bottom) with thinnest tool you have. Drill out the hole smaller than the plug. Hollow out bottom with small tools. Clean out the chips often. Outer edge is the hardest to get.
4. Clean out all the chips before gluing in the plug as you will never get them out later.. Size the hole to the plug. Cut sides straight in. You want a tight fit. Glue with thick CA and use the tail stock for added pressure. Glue with thin around the edge & use accelerator. Glue joint is the only thigh holding it into the chuck (next step).

September 16 –18, Turning Southern Style. Helen, GA.

November 4-6, NC Woodturning Symposium, Greensboro Coliseum, Greensboro,

Shows Coming In VA:

September 18-22, Decoy Carving Workshop, Holiday Lake 4H, $275 covers all. nmahanes@vt.edu

September 17, Sid & Penny Club Picnic.

September 17, 2012, VA Woodturners Symposium, Fishersville.

5. Mount the glued tenon into the chuck. Bring up the tail stock and finish turning the top. Remove the tail stock and turn off the dimple left from the tenon. Drill a 7/32 inch hole; slowly widen the hole with a detail gouge. (For extra fun, try step 4 in the hand out! Emailed to all last month!) Sand

6. With a jam or vacuum chuck, mount the top into it. Bring up the tail stock. Cut off the tenon, concave the bottom (watch the thickness of the plug). Light cuts only.

7. Hide the glue joint with a few beads, or grooves. Not too deep or the plug will be gone. Use a detail gouge.

8. Finish, buff, sell
