Open Bowls & My Favorite Tools

Fred Williamson from Central VA Turners gave the demo this month

Fred makes lots of wide bowls for sale. To speed up production he has made and adapted many tools. First, his face-plates have two sets of 6 holes, set in 2 concentric circles. The outside uses 1.5 inch #12 screws and the inside circle uses 1 inch (the outside screws are removed while finishing the base). Second, he makes his own soft pad sanding disks using wood, foam, leather, PSA sandpaper, 3M 90 spray adhesive and a drill. Each drill has a different grit on it. No paper changes. Third, short tools get an extension added with CA glue and a longer handle.

Sanding pad parts

Fred turns the bowls green, lets them dry for 3 days, sands then adds the finish. He likes an egg or parable shape for the bottoms (lessens the cracking when drying) and open bowl shape as it's easier to sand. Fred likes to cut face grain as much as possible. By wiggling the tool a bit you can find the sweet cutting spot. Fred finishes the outside to final shape then hogs out the middle to half the final depth. [continued page 2]

Our prayer go out to the families

No Pen Turner this month, but in January we will meet again with all the free pen blanks turned into awesome pens.

[Fred from page 1] With finer cuts he finishes the bottom to 3/16 thickness. After the inside is finished, he removes the outside set of screws from the faceplate and works on the foot. Fred sharpens a spindle gouge to a point to cut out the tenon which is in a tight spot next to the faceplate. Shire cuts are used on the bottom. Watch for the screws.

Make the bottom smaller for a lighter bowl look. Sand to #600 grit and apply a salad bowl finish.

Simple 2 point deep boring bar system. Bar is square stock
