*2009 Resource Directory updates: Now as you are having your local chapter elections it is important to keep your local chapter contact changes current for the website and the Resource Directory. AAW has provided a tool for you to keep this information current. When you log on to your membership there is an additional option: Your local chapter listing – select this option and it will list all the data for your local chapter. To assign a new member to maintain this entry, (for example after an election) you enter the member number of the person you are assigning to maintain your local chapter listing. You will need to obtain their member number before you start. By providing this tool for your use it is our hope that changes will be made as required to keep the local chapter website and directory a vital resource to your members. The deadline for the printed Resource Directory for 2009 is December 31, 2008. Sincerely, AAW Board and Staff

Turning Challenge

The Fir ball on the tee is Dan's golf course. Andy Hammer did the tall holy vase. Bruce Robbins did the pen, with his own cast silver parts. Sid and Penny collaborated on the "feathery" hollow form, and Sid did the egg shell on cherry hollow form. Mike Lane shows innovation in Christmas ornaments. Thanks Dan

I am writing from the Woodturning School in Damariscotta, Maine. We are running an exciting workshop over the Martin Luther King weekend in January, 2009. We would like to extend the invitation to attend to woodturners from all over. Could you make available to your club members the following information? Many Thanks, Rebecca Tilden, Administrator Woodturning School 10 Cappelletti Dr, Damariscotta, Maine, 04578 207-563-2345, www.woodturningschool.org Wood Hats with Hannes Woodturning School, Midcoast, ME JoHannes Michelsen Workshop January 18 &19, 2009 The Woodturning School in conjunction with the Maine woodturners Chapter of the AAW in Damariscotta, ME is pleased to offer a very special Hat Turning Workshop featuring JoHannes Michelsen. You can be one of the 6 lucky people privileged to turn a cowboy hat (or other type) under the guidance of Johannes Michelsen, who invented hat turning in the 1980's. You'll be working with wet figured maple and will be making a hat fitted to your head and made comfortable to wear with soft fitting liners inside the hat. The entire course will be an adventure. The hat blanks will be like nothing you've ever seen. You will use light boxes and light rods to illuminate your cuts from the inside of the hat. The extraordinary flexibility of fresh wet maple will permit banded bending jigs to make the brim the exact shape you want for your hat. Michelsen will demonstrate at the Maine Woodturners Club January meeting on Saturday, Jan 17, 2009. His intensive workshop will take place at the Woodturning School over the rest of Martin Luther King 3-day weekend, January 18 & 19, 2009. Most important: no one goes home without a hat; no one goes home without a smile; everyone goes home a significantly more accomplished turner. Cost of the workshop at the Woodturning School is $585, and will include personal instruction, all materials, breakfast pastries, lunch, snacks and beverages. To register, contact us the Woodturning School 207-563-2345 or rebecca@woodturningschool.org Payment is required at time of registration. Prerequisite: Intro 1 and 2 or their equivalent. The Woodturning School, located in Damariscotta, ME offers beginning and intermediate woodturning students a chance to develop their skills in a consistent, safe, and friendly environment. The program has an educational curriculum that is based on a woodturning syllabus. Experienced and skilled teachers offer consistent, solid instruction. "All you have to do is sign up and show up" says Ken Keoughan, Director of the school. "We provide the Oneway 1640 lathes, the materials, the well sharpened tools and the quality instruction." For more detailed information about us, see <http://www.woodturningschool.org/html> The website also includes a list of local accommodations, many of which offer discounts
