Bob Silkensen & Simple Segment Turning

For a last minute fill-in Bob was very well organized, great handouts and superb demo. Segment turning is different from others in the fact you need a design first- no room for design modification after turning starts. In fact turning is the last step in the process.

Design & Wood calculation: After determining how many segments for each ring you have to find the thickness, width, length & cut angle for them. Time for high school geometry or use one of the segment cutting programs available on line (www.segmentedwoodturners.org or www.woodturnerpro.com).

Cut Segments: How select the wood and rip it to size. Cut all the segments for 1 ring (keep them together). Bob uses a miter jig to do this on the table saw. You can buy one or make it from the plans in Woodturning Design, Dec 2012.

Ring Glue-up: Glue up 2 half rings, place a small piece of dowel between them and clamp the halves together.

Rubber bands or hose clamps work well. When dry fix the two halves together. If you have a gap, sand the ends with a disc sander. A perfect fit is required. Flatten the ring on a disc or drum sander.

Assemble Rings: Mount on a flatten base (Bob likes to use a solid piece of wood for the base). Turn the other side flat then glue on another ring. Use the tail stock to center & add pressure.
